Dave,

There's one other category of documents that I realized we'd need from Wells Fargo to reach a deal regarding the subpoena: relevant transaction data for any third-party agents (payment processors, payment aggregators, etc.) over which Wells Fargo had supervisory responsibilities. So in total, we'd need: checks, wire transfer confirmations, account statements, and third-party agent transaction records.

Or, if the same information can be produced in a more easily accessible way (for example — a spreadsheet that shows all transaction data we're asking for), we would accept that too of course (and we'd prefer it).

Thanks,

Dave,

Thanks for your email.

I'm a little frustrated because Wells Fargo has known that these are urgent issues since the subpoenas were issued on May 16, and we've been trying to confer with Wells Fargo about this for a while. I know it may not be your personal fault because you came onto this case recently, but your client's delay in articulating its position on this subpoena seems dilatory.

I'm not going to be reachable on Monday or Tuesday morning of next week, but I'd like to confer on Tuesday afternoon. If we haven't resolved these issues by the end of the day on Wednesday of next week, I intend to file a motion to compel along with an ex parte motion requesting an expedited briefing schedule.

Thanks,

Hi all,

I just wanted to flag that Wealth Assistants filed a motion to quash on Friday night. I still think we should continue negotiations regarding the subpoena now because the motion to quash is frivolous. And hypothetically if Wells and Plaintiffs end up at an impasse, we could litigate a motion to compel in parallel with the motion to quash.

10am PT works well. We can use the Teams information below.

Please forgive me as I am getting oriented to the case, are you referencing a subpoena under Rule 45? It is not clear to me how a party to the case can be subject to discovery through a third-party subpoena.

Thanks,

Dave

Hi Dave,

It's nice to e-meet you. I'm widely available for a call to generally discuss the matter on Monday. Would 10am pacific time work for you?

My primary concern, which is time sensitive, is Wells Fargo's response to our subpoena. I need to see the transaction records as soon as possible so that I can continue tracing the other defendants' assets. The previous counsel let me know that Wells Fargo wanted to confer about that further, which I'm happy to do, but I need to resolve that matter when we speak on Monday so that I can move to compel right away if I need to.

Thanks,
